

Resume, schmesume.

You want to know if I can write well.

Can I come up with strong concepts? Can I collaborate productively? Can I work quickly and dependably? Yes, yes, yes. I can also give you the names of a few dozen people who will corroborate these claims. ✍️ I love advertising. It's how I launched my career many moons ago, when I hung up signs all over Boston's Back Bay announcing that this industrious, intrepid "recent Wellesley graduate and aspiring stand-up comedian" was available for hire. It was not long thereafter (about the time I'd started looking at Ad Club classes, as it happens) that I serendipitously received a call from a small ad agency on Newbury Street. One thing led to another, and before too long, I was working on taglines, hawking mutual funds and pet food, writing, casting, and directing radio commercials, and having the time of my life. Once I became a copywriter, I never wanted to be anything else. ✍️ I have samples. I have stories. And I have skills. Here's how you can get in touch with me. I hope you will.

sara@shinyredcopy.com
863.255.4181

Sara Rosinsky
Shiny Red Copy
shinyredcopy.com